

BRUCE BROWN FILMWORKS^{INCORPORATED}

Selecting a production company can be tricky. Many production companies send you a demo reel that's a compilation of the work of different directors and cameramen. The staff or freelance cameraman sent to your set may not be the one whose work you saw on the reel. Or they may send you a reel with spots that they edited without having been involved in the production.

Don't be fooled! When you view our reel, you will only see spots we directed and shot. With Bruce Brown Filmworks, what you see is what you get. Period.

The cornerstone of Bruce Brown Filmworks is Bruce Brown - a gifted and highly-respected director with more than 20 years' experience shooting film and video. The Bruce Brown team is put together to match your project's requirements. Our group of production professionals has worked together on countless projects. We know how to get the job done creatively and cost-effectively. You can count on Bruce Brown Filmworks to provide the right people to make your unique vision a reality.

Our goal is to provide you with the highest quality film and video at the best price possible. That's why our edit suite is equipped with the latest cutting edge technology.

Even more important, we're involved with your project from start to finish. A lot of production companies use "project" people - a cameraman who only shoots and then turns the tape over to an editor who only edits. At Bruce Brown Filmworks, we stay involved through your entire project. So instead of an editor who isn't aware of why a shot was handled a certain way, you have a team who knows your vision and sticks to it. You get a better project that's more cost-effective. And it saves you time, too.
